

18.1 Template email

As for the newsletter module, the admin user will be able to access the email template editor. An email template can be used for messages or newsletters and can be saved in either a public or private folder. Variables can also be added within the template.

The screenshot displays the vtenext admin dashboard. On the left is a dark blue sidebar with a search bar and a menu including 'Listview colors', 'REST Webservices', 'External applications', 'Klondike AI', 'KlondikeAI configuration', 'Customer tools', 'Email Templates' (highlighted), 'Webforms', 'Business Portal', 'GDPR', 'Check Business Portal login', 'Wilson App', and 'Other Settings'. The main content area has a light blue header with a search bar and notification icons. Below the header, the breadcrumb trail reads 'Settings > Email Templates > Viewing "Epsilon Template"', followed by the subtitle 'Manage email templates used for Campaigns and Mass mailing'. The 'Properties of "Epsilon Template"' section includes a 'Duplicate' and 'Edit' button. A table lists the template's details: Name (Epsilon Template), Description, Folder (Public), Type (Newsletter), and Subject (Photo Style News). Below the table, a 'Message' preview shows a template layout with a pre-header, a title 'Epsilon Free Premium Email Newsletter Template', and a placeholder image of a red car on a dirt road.
